

Internet Resources

Center for the American Woman and Politics supplies statistics, rosters, and facts about women office holders.

Core Collections on Women's History contains documents and information about women's issues during the presidency of Gerald Ford.

Distinguished Women of Past and Present provides extensive information and includes a subject heading for law.

H-Women Discussion Networks provides resources and discussions about women's history.

Institute of Women's Policy Research is an independent, nonprofit scientific research organization of public policies affecting women and families.

International Institute of Social History: World Wide Web Virtual Library: Women's History.

Internet Women's History Sourcebook presents online documents and secondary discussions and information.

League of Women Voters is a multi-issue organization promoting informed and active participation in government.

Library of Congress offers a variety of online exhibits and documents about women, including:

“Pioneering Women in American Memory

“Women Come to the Front”

“Woman Suffrage—Photographs and Prints”

Living the Legacy 1848-1998 provides information about the women's rights movement in America.

National Archives offers a variety of online exhibits and documents about women, including:

“A People At War: Women Who Served”

“Women Soldiers of the Civil War”

“The Woman Suffrage Movement”

National Council of Research on Women is a working alliance of women's research and policy centers.

National Museum of Women in the Arts provides a tour of the museum that is located in Washington, DC.

National Women's Hall of Fame features great women in American history.

National Women's Health Information Center created by the Office on Women's Health, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

National Women's History Project promotes multicultural U.S. women's history awareness through materials development and distribution, teacher training, and information services.

National Women's Political Caucus is a non-partisan organization dedicated to increasing the number of women in elected and appointed public offices at all levels.

Proclamation of the first Women's History Week, 1986.

Sewall-Belmont House is a National Historic Landmark dedicated to the suffrage movement.

U.S. Department of Labor Women's Bureau provides information and publications about women in America's paid workforce.

University of Wisconsin Women's Studies Librarian's Office has links to various women's studies programs and more

Women in American History by Encyclopedia Britannica offers comprehensive information about women's history, including audio clips.

Women's Legal History Biography Project aims to extend the historiography of women as lawyers in the United States.

Women's Voting Guide offers detailed, non-partisan, non-advocacy information on the positions of all candidates for office and includes voting records of all Congressional representatives.